

Corey Pickelsimer

Foreign Agricultural Service Representative

Corey Pickelsimer currently serves as the AFSA Governing Board Representative for the Foreign Agricultural Service (FAS), and is the Director of the FAS Trade and Scientific Exchange Division. His Division implements FAS short- and long-term scientific exchange, training, and trade development programs.

Mr. Pickelsimer's last overseas tour was as Senior Agricultural Attaché to the U.S. Embassy in Pretoria, South Africa, where his office covered 11 countries in Southern Africa.

He entered the Foreign Service in 2006 where he was first posted to Bangkok, Thailand as Agricultural Attaché.

Pickelsimer is happily married to his wife, Janalee, and is a proud father to my daughter Nichelle (14), and son, Cole (7). His wife is Alaskan-Native, but they met in WA in 1998 in Pullman Washington, where he received my Bachelors in Agribusiness and Masters in Agricultural Economics at Washington State University.
